

Taking The Baby Out

Front Carrying Position:

In Facing-In And Facing-Out Position:

To take the baby out while carrying in these positions, simply unbuckle the head support from your shoulder strap and slide baby out.

Back Carrying Position:

To take baby out in this position first, get a second person to hold your baby at the back. Then release the chest buckle and slide both shoulder straps. (Warning: Make sure the second person is holding the baby and the carrier this time). Finally, put the baby and the carrier on a soft surface and unfasten all the buckles to take the baby out.

Safety Warnings:

- Use this carrier for children up to 9 kg only
- Small children can fall through the leg opening. To avoid fall or strangulation always adjust the leg openings to the smallest size suitable for infants
- Do not use this carrier as a child restraint in a motor vehicle or as a car safety seat
- The carrier is not suitable for use while cooking, skiing, running or riding a bike
- While using this carrier do not participate in any strenuous sports activity
- If you have to stoop while using the carrier with the baby in it, bend at the knees and not at the waist
- The product is subject to normal wear and tear. Check the carrier often and discontinue using the carrier if the seams are loose, torn or if the carrier is damaged
- Do not place sharp objects in the carrier pocket
- Do not leave the child in the carrier if it is unattached to a caregiver
- The carrier is not to be used by a person impaired by alcohol or drugs
- Avoid using this carrier if the user experiences back pain or any other physical problems

Tips for Child Safety

- This baby carrier is designed for use by adults while walking only. Verify that all buckles, toggles, straps and adjustments are secure before each use
- Always make sure your baby's nose and mouth are clear and unobstructed by the carrier or clothing so as to ensure easy breathing
- The baby must face towards you until he or she is able to hold his or her head upright independently
- Hold on to your baby tightly until all buckles and latches are secured in place and straps are pulled tight around the user's body. Sit down when placing and removing the baby
- Make sure baby's body parts and skin are clear when locking buckles or snaps to prevent from pinching
- Check often to ensure that the baby is not too hot, straps are snug but not too tight and the baby is secure

Helpful Tips:

- To minimize stress on the shoulders and back, spread out the straps on your shoulders to evenly distribute the weight of the baby
  - To nurse in privacy, sit down comfortable, loosen the straps and have your hands supporting the baby and the baby carrier at all times. Make sure to tighten the straps again before standing up
  - When learning to place your baby in the baby carrier, do so over a bed or soft surface or with the help of another person
  - If you feel that the baby carrier is too tight for your baby, then follow the below steps :
1. Check if the size adjustment buckle is in the correct position for your baby's size
  2. Adjust the straps buckles so as to increase the length of the straps. This will give more space to you and your baby.

Cleaning Instructions:

To keep the baby carrier looking new for a longer time, we recommend that regular care be limited to spot cleaning with a damp cloth. Machine wash only if necessary. Machine wash separately in cold water, gentle cycle. Drip dry only. Do not bleach or use fabric softener. Do not use a dryer. Do not iron.
Babyhug liquid laundry detergent is best recommended.

Putting Your Baby In:

The Facing In Position

The facing-in position is a perfect way to keep your baby cuddled against you and provide close contact and attention babies need. The wrap-around head support cradles baby's head and neck. The facing in position helps in parent baby bonding as you can play, talk and make eye-contact with the baby in this position.

Step 1:

Pass the shoulder straps over your head, crossing behind your back and fasten the buckles at both sides of the carrier. At the same time, fasten the waist belt

Step 2:

Sit down and release one side of the head support. Unbuckle the side opening and detach Velcro fasteners. Carefully slide the baby into the carrier and hold him/her against you. Make sure that the baby's legs are secured in the leg opening and the baby's arms are in the arm holes. (For bigger babies, the arms can comfortably rest over the sides of the head support.)

Step 3:

Fasten the buckles over the Velcro side opening and pull on the end of the webbing strap to adjust fit. Leg opening must be adjusted to the smallest size possible to prevent small babies from slipping through.

Step 4:

While supporting the baby's weight with one hand, fasten the side support buckles. Before releasing your hold on the baby and standing up, ensure that all the buckles are securely fastened.

The Facing Out Position

The facing out position is perfect when your baby can support his/her own head and is ready to explore. This position gives your baby the best of both the worlds - the comfort and security of being held by you and checking out the things in the world around.

Step 1:

Pass the shoulder straps over your head, crossing behind your back and fasten the buckles at both sides of the carrier. At the same time, fasten the waist belt

Step 2:

Sit down and release one side of the head support. Unbuckle the side opening and detach Velcro fasteners. Carefully slide the baby into the carrier and hold him/her facing away from you.

Step 3:

Make sure each of the baby's legs are in the leg opening. Fasten the Velcro fasteners.

Step 4:

Fasten buckles over the Velcro side opening and the head support buckles. Adjust the head support straps until the baby's back is snugly against your chest. The baby should not lean forward. (Make sure that the baby's arms are in the arm holes. For bigger babies, the arms can comfortably rest over the sides of the head support.)

Step 5:

While supporting the baby's weight with one hand, pull on the end of the webbing strap to adjust fit. Leg opening should be adjusted to the smallest possible size. Before releasing your hold on the baby and standing up, ensure that all the buckles are securely fastened.

Note:

For both the facing in and out positions, adjust the carrier till the baby is high on your chest or at a height where you can easily kiss the baby's head.

Warning:

- If the baby falls asleep in the carrier, turn the baby's head sideways to provide an unobstructed source of air

- There should always be room between the baby's face and your chest to ensure a clear source of air

Carrying the Baby On The Back (6 Months+)

Step 1:

Place the carrier on a flat surface. Place the baby into the carrier and attach the fastenings and buckles

Step 2:

Have a second person hold the baby at your back. Pass the shoulder straps over your shoulders, crossing at the front and fasten the buckles on both sides. At the same time fasten the waist belt too.

Step 3:

Adjust the straps till both you and the baby feel comfortable.
