Please read the instructions carefully before use and keep this manual for future reference.

Safety Warnings:

- Use this carrier for children between 3.5 and 12 kgs
- Small children can fall through the leg opening. To avoid fall or strangulation always adjust the leg openings to the smallest size suitable for infants.
- Do not use this carrier as a child restraint in a motor vehicle or as a car safety seat
- The carrier is not suitable for use while cooking, skiing, running or riding a vehicle
- While using this carrier do not participate in any strenuous sports activity
- If you have to stoop while using the carrier with the baby in it, bend at the knees and not at the waist
- The product is subject to normal wear and tear. Check the carrier often and discontinue using it if the seams are loose, torn or if the carrier is damaged
- Do not place sharp objects in the carrier pocket
- Do not leave the child in the carrier if it is unattached to a caregiver.
- The carrier is not to be used by a person impaired by alcohol or drugs
- Avoid using this carrier if the user experiences back pain or any other physical problems

Tips for Child Safety :

- This baby carrier is designed for use by adults while walking only. Verify that all buckles, toggles, straps and adjustments are secure before each use.
- Always make sure your baby's nose and mouth are clear and unobstructed by the carrier or clothing so as to ensure easy breathing
- The baby must face towards you until he or she is able to hold his or her head upright independently
- Hold on to your baby tightly until all buckles and latches are secured in place and straps are pulled tight around the user's body. Sit down when placing and removing the baby
- Make sure baby's body parts and skin are clear when locking buckles or snaps to prevent from pinching
- Check often to ensure that the baby is not too hot, straps are snug but not too tight and the baby is secure

Helpful Tips:

- To minimize stress on the shoulders and back, spread out the straps on your shoulders to evenly distribute the weight of the baby
- To nurse in privacy, sit down comfortably, loosen the straps and have your hands supporting the baby and the baby carrier at all times. Make sure to tighten the straps again before standing up
- When learning to place your baby in the baby carrier, do so over a bed or a soft surface or with the help of another person
- If you feel that the baby carrier is too tight for your baby:
- Check if the size adjustment buckle is in the correct position for your baby's size
- Adjust the straps buckles so as to increase the length of the straps. This will give more space to you and your baby.

Cleaning Instructions:

To keep baby carrier looking new for longer, we recommend that regular care be limited to spot cleaning with a damp cloth. Machine wash only if necessary. Machine wash separately in cold water, gentle cycle. Drip dry only. Do not bleach or use fabric softener. Do not use a dryer. Do not iron.

Putting your baby in:

The Facing-In Position

The facing-in position is a perfect way to keep your baby cuddled against you and provide the close contact and attention babies need. The wrap-around head support cradles baby's head and neck. The facing in position helps in parent baby bonding as you can play, talk and make eye-contact with the baby in this position.

Step 1:
Insert the back hard supporter (PE board) into the hole of the front piece and close the Velcro.

Step 2:
Put the baby carrier on a safe surface and lay the baby on it. Wrap the front piece on the baby's tummy (like a wrap diaper).

Step 3:
Fasten the head support buckle. Make sure the baby's arms go through the arm holes.

Step 4:
Connect both sides of waist buckle on the baby's tummy until you hear a "click" sound which indicates the straps are securely fastened. Tighten the straps for comfort. (The male buckle must go through the elastic band. The band will hold the extra portion of the strap).

Step 5:
Fasten the shoulder strap buckle.

Step 6:
Bend your body forward to put both the shoulder straps on your shoulders. (At this stage the baby should remain on the safe surface).

Step 7:
Bring both hands behind your back and reach the back strap buckles and fasten the buckle behind your back. (Take help from someone else for this step if you need).

Step 8:
Securely hug the baby (with his/her face towards you) close to your chest and make sure the baby's bottom is in the center of the carrier.

Step 9:
Adjust the length of the shoulder straps and tighten for comfort.

The Facing-Out Position:

The facing-out position is perfect when your baby can support his/her own head and is ready to explore. This position gives your baby the best of both worlds - the comfort and security of being held by you and checking out the things in the world around.

Step 1:

Remove the back hard support (PE board) from the baby carrier and fold over the front piece so that the baby's face is not obstructed. Fasten the waist buckle on one side.

Step 2:

Sit down and release one side of the head support. Embrace the baby securely and slide him/ her in to the baby carrier from the open side with the face outward.

Step 3:

Make sure each of the baby's legs are in the leg openings. Connect the buckle

Step 4:

Put the shoulder strap on your shoulder and adjust the size of the strap.

Step 5:

Bring both hands behind your back and fasten the back strap buckle. (Or ask someone else to do it). Before releasing your hold on the baby and standing up, ensure that all the buckles are securely fastened.

Carrying the baby on the back Facing-In

Step 1:

Insert the back hard supporter (PE board) into the hole of the front piece and close the Velcro. Make sure that it does not slip.

Step 2:

Put the baby carrier on a safe surface and lay the baby on it. Wrap the front piece on the baby's tummy (like a wrap diaper).

Step 3:

Fasten the head support buckle.

Step 4:

Connect both sides of waist buckle on the baby's tummy until you hear a "click" sound which indicates the straps are securely fastened. Tighten the straps for comfort. (The male buckle must go through the elastic band. The band will hold the extra portion of the strap).

Step 5:

Have other people hold the baby at your back. Pass the shoulder straps over the head and fasten the chest buckle. (Before releasing your hands, make sure all the buckles are fastened.)

Step 6:

Fasten the chest buckle close and check buckle holder.

Carrying the baby in the Horizontal Feeding Position

Step 1:

Insert the back hard supporter (PE board) into the hole of the front piece and close the Velcro.

Step 2:

Put the baby carrier on a safe surface and lay the baby on it. Wrap the front piece on the baby's tummy (like a wrap diaper).

Step 3:

Fasten the head support buckle. Make sure the baby's arms go through the respective arm holes.

Step 4:

Connect both sides of waist buckle on the baby's tummy until you hear a "click" sound which indicates the straps are securely fastened. Tighten the straps for comfort. (The male buckle must go through the elastic band. The band will hold the extra portion of the strap).

Step 5:

Fasten the shoulder strap buckle.

Step 6:

Close the chest buckle holder.

Step 7:

Adjust the chest buckle holder strap to the smallest size.

Step 8:

Fasten both sides of the shoulder strap buckles.

Step 9:

Reach for the shoulder strap and hug your baby to your chest. Place the straps on the shoulders.

Warning:

Double check all the buckles. Make sure every part is correctly and fully fastened before releasing your hand.
